125 Years and Still Proudly Manufacturing

Company History

On May 7, 1888 Charles Dingley and E. and A. Wallace entered into a business partnership, and named that business the STANDARD RIVET COMPANY. E. and A. were involved in the tannery trade, and Charles was a young entrepreneur. The focus of the new business venture was to supply the shoe and harness industries with rivets and rivet setting machines to be used in the making of their products. The business was a success. The shoe industry alone comprised 65% of all the STANDARD RIVET COMPANY'S Sales.

Time passed and the country was seeing many changes. Touring cars became very popular with those who could afford them, and the STANDARD RIVET COMPANY Supplied rivet setting machines to the industry to secure canvas tops to cars. Eben Wallace Sr. took the reins from E. and A. and set a course for the future of the company.

Pre-formed brass staples were manufactured and sold to the shoe industry, and when this country went to war, the STANDARD RIVET COMPANY sold millions of these to the government to be used in the making of footwear for our troops overseas, and today we continue to supply these rivets for our troops. We also engineered and machined valve bodies for aircraft for the government. For all the support given by the STANDARD RIVET COMPANY to the government's efforts in World War II, we were recognized with the presentation of an "E" Award. We were proud to serve our country in any way possible. Eben Wallace Jr. was now on board and setting his own path.

As the years passed and our business grew, we added products that were geared toward the decoration and ornamentation of leather and branched out to include the motorcycle and fashion industries. We are pleased to report that this line is flourishing and our products can be seen on many well-recognized labels. Stephen Wallace, fourth generation, is now at the helm, and mapping out the future of the company.

So, you may ask, how have we stayed in business for so long? As a business that tools, machines, and produces it's product line on-site, we are able to insure the highest quality and consistency with everything we produce. We manufacture with a history of over 125 years of family pride and commitment to customer satisfaction... and it shows!

We hope that our products can be used in your business application. Feel free to contact us with any questions... we plan on being here for another 125 years..!

Best Wishes for Success,
The Wallace Family @ STANDARD RIVET COMPANY
